People, in any organization, are the essence of what outcomes are made of. Each contribution (positive or negative) that is made, whether individually, or part of a team, is pivotal to the daily operations of the entity in which they belong. Understanding human needs, both interpersonally, and in the context of an organization, is at the core of these courses. These will introduce concepts related to the interaction between one another, strategies related to the development of members of the organization, and ways to reduce conflict and improve outcomes within the organization.

*The courses in this program include:
• Teambuilding
• Staff Development
• Human Resources
• Conflict Resolution

*Coursework subject to change and changes in availability per semester.
