As we start a new academic year, I would like to provide you with up-to-date information on the internal grant programs administered in the Research and Sponsored Programs Office. We will have three internal grant programs available this year. The Research and Creative Endeavors Program will have two deadlines: October 1, 2014 and April 1, 2015. As you know, the Research and Creative Endeavors Program is designed to provide seed monies for faculty and staff scholarly and creative projects. The Grant Development Program provides money for external proposal development and these applications will be accepted throughout the academic year. Finally, the Grant Writing Initiative Awards will be made at our annual luncheon in May 2015.

There are a number of workshops scheduled for the fall to support your grant writing and research compliance needs. Catherine Sajna will be delivering a workshop entitled "Finding Grant Opportunities" on Wednesday, September 24, 2014 from 12-1:30 pm in the Learning and Teaching Excellence Center in Crumb Library. Johanne Sullivan will be delivering two research compliance workshops. The first workshop, "Obtaining IRB Approval for Class Projects and Assignments," is scheduled for Wednesday, September 17, 2014 from 12-1 pm in the L-TEC and the second workshop, "Ethics in Research: Tips for Making It through the IRB," will be held Tuesday, November 4, 2014 from 12-1 pm. If you can’t make it to one of the workshops, you can always schedule a meeting with Catherine or Johanne to discuss your grant writing or research compliance needs.

As always, I look forward to seeing everyone on campus and hope you have a very productive Fall semester!
Congratulations to Faculty who have received these awards!!

Faculty, Staff and students gathered in the Barrington Student Union on Wednesday, April 23, 2014, for the annual Learning and Research Fair.

There were approximately 62 presentations at the Fair with faculty and students from all three schools participating. The Fair was well attended with a steady stream of visitors throughout the four-hour period. Ten students received awards for their poster presentations through the Ram L. Chugh Research and Public Service Award program and the Kilmer Undergraduate Research Poster Excellence Award Program.

DO’s...

1. Think of the Introduction as a marketing document. Put spin on your project, use white space and diagrams, have a clearly formulated goal/objective/or aim in Bold Face.

2. Toot your own horn. If you don’t do it, no one will even notice that there is something of import in your proposal.

3. Have the SUNY Potsdam grant writer read through and critique a draft at least one month before you intend to submit it. She is Catherine Sajna at sajnacm@potsdam.edu or 267-2686 in the RSPO office.

4. Have at least 4 others read and critique your proposal. Two should be in your discipline and two shouldn’t. A lay person, a politician, and a reviewer with only a glance to spare should be able to get a sense of what is innovative and transformative about your proposal.

5. Organize the proposal according to the merit/evaluative criteria spelled out in the Request for Proposal. Use the point value to help you decide how long each section should be.

6. Put a lot of thought into the title. Reviewers are often assigned based on the title alone, not even considering the abstract.

7. Establish your experience in the method you are proposing. However, not having experience is not necessarily a deal breaker if you can show that you have collaborators who will be available to advise you.

8. Be explicit and highlight or underline your objectives or aims and the innovative or transformative potential of your work.

And Don’ts

1. Don’t just glance at the 20+ page Request for Proposal. Stop and read the directions—ALL the directions. Did you know that many proposals are rejected for formatting flaws or for not meeting the requirements in the Request for Proposal. Read the directions carefully.

2. Don’t despair if you are rejected. Grant writing and grant getting require persistence. Multiple submissions is the norm.

3. Don’t be shy or subtle. The proposal is not the same as a paper for publication; it’s more like a poster at a poster presentation. It needs to catch the eye, and draw a passer-by in, and give the reader the basics in a few lines.

4. Don’t use too many different types of font.

5. Don’t exceed the page limit by even a single word.

Strongly recommended manual:

RSPO Grant Help for Faculty

The Office of Research and Sponsored Programs will help faculty who are interested in the grant world in several ways. A pre-award specialist can help 1) construct a search for grant opportunities through the databases SUNY Potsdam subscribes to: SPIN, GrantsAdvisor and Pivot at cos.com, 2) clarify the demands of the granting agency’s request for proposals including deadlines and data, 3) provide institutional information and certification or training as is often required for proposals, 4) provide a series of deadlines and act as a sounding board to develop projects and write proposals, 5) read, critique, and edit a proposal, 6) develop a realistic budget.

If you are awarded a grant, there is also a post-award staff to manage purchases, travel payment, student paychecks as well as compliance and management issues.

Funding Opportunities To Pique Your Interest

Below are some funding opportunities which may pique your interest. Funding agencies try to steer work into an area they have decided is important. These may be areas you’ve never thought of but which would be fun to get involved in.

Many federal grants are designed to encourage collaboration, data-based decision-making or new methodologies, and outreach to the community.

How to read the entries:

- The entries give a brief summary of the topic and the granting agency. If the ‘topic’ is in capital letters and bolded, it is the actual title of the grant Program.
- If some due dates are past, consider applying for next year. Many grant opportunities are repeated each year.
- Within disciplines, entries are not in any particular order.

Funding in Community Health

Health and Human Services and the CDC sponsor a program “to increase responsive public health actions by promoting healthy and safe environments and preventing harmful exposures related to contamination at Brownfield/Land Reuse Sites.” There is one such site in Potsdam. SUNY POTSDAM SUPPORTS FACULTY

If a project listed looks interesting, but you’re just toooo busy, consider getting the help of a professional grant writer and/or a course release. The Office of Research and Sponsored Programs has Catherine Sajna, grant writer to help you out.

The Provost’s office will cover a course release and up to $1500 in expenses in order to help you go for a major federal grant. Applications for this support are available from Patty Stone in the Office of the Provost.

She can be reached at stonepl@potsdam.edu or x2108.

Specific information on the criteria for application as well as the award are given on page 12. Other support programs are featured on p. 13.
It is the responsibility of each investigator (faculty, staff, student, and affiliate researcher) to bring ALL proposed research activity involving the use of human subjects or activity involving data collection from, or related to, human subjects to the attention of State University of New York at Potsdam Institutional Review Board (IRB) for review and approval.

- This includes historical, education, and business related research, survey and interview procedures, as well as research involving clinical and experimental techniques.
- Student initiated research and class projects that involve human subjects must also be submitted for review.

Your study may be eligible for expedited review if it involves no more than minimal risk to the subject. Examples of research that might be eligible for expedited review include:

- Prospective collection of biological specimens for research purposes by noninvasive means;
- Collection of data through noninvasive procedures;
- Research involving materials (data, documents, records, or specimens) that have been collected or will be collected solely for non-research purposes;
- Collection of data from voice, video, digital, or image recordings made for research purposes;
- Research on individual or group characteristics or behavior (including, but not limited to, research on perception, cognition, motivation, identity, language, communication, cultural beliefs or practices, and social behavior) or research employing survey, interview, oral history, focus group, program evaluation, human factors evaluation, or quality assurance methodologies.

Research will be subject to review by the entire IRB if it:
- Does not meet the criteria for expedited review;
- Requires the use of deception;
- Requires the use of subjects from populations in need of special protection (e.g. prisoners, individuals with disabilities, victims of abuse, pregnant women, and children).

All researchers must take the CITI online training program which includes modules in “Defining Research with Human Subjects,” “Informed Consent,” and “Social and Behavioral Research.”

Questions about the CITI Training, the IRB process or whether the IRB process is relevant to your research should be addressed to Johanne Sullivan at x2688 or sullijo@potsdam.edu

Please allow adequate time for your proposal to be reviewed prior to the intended start date of the project. The committee requires sufficient time to review the proposal and to suggest any revisions prior to project approval by the institutional official.

If you are unsure whether the project you plan to conduct should be submitted to the IACUC or have questions about the approval process, please contact Johanne Sullivan at x2688 or sullijo@potsdam.edu

Researchers are reminded that state and federal laws require that all projects involving animal subjects be reviewed. For further information, meeting schedule and forms go to: http://www.potsdam.edu/faculty/research/rspo/IACUC/index.cfm
SUNY Potsdam’s Major Federal Funding Program

This program is designed for faculty members who have the potential to write successful grant proposals for substantial funding from federal agencies (see Award Criteria below).

Recipients will be given one course release (3 credits per semester for up to six semesters) until funding is awarded.

The Provost’s Office will reimburse the recipient’s department for the cost of an adjunct to replace the released course(s).

Because the intent of this program is to give faculty members time to work on a major proposal, a stipend may not be substituted for the release time, nor should the faculty member take on any additional extra service work during any semester in which release time is received.

Recipients will be awarded up to $1500 annually for expenses directly incurred while writing the proposal (e.g. purchase of books or software, travel to grant writing workshops, or travel to meet with prospective sponsor.)

Submit three (3) copies to the Office of the Provost by December 15 to apply for release time the subsequent fall semester and by March 15 for release time the subsequent spring semester. The Provost will review applications with advice from the appropriate Dean and the Director of Research and Sponsored Programs. Application forms are available from Patty Stone in the Office of the Provost at x2108 or

Is Going for a Grant worth your Time? Absolutely

Budget cuts in recent years have made getting a grant more competitive than ever. You’re busy with all the tasks involved in teaching 4 classes a semester. Is going for a grant worth your time? Sure is! Grants provide money to do a number of things which will make faculty work easier and more exciting such as money for conference travel or course reassignment.

The flagship publication Chronicle of Higher Education offers a discussion thread to help you find support. Research Questions is the broader thread to “talk about the joys and challenges of doing research, applying for grants, and publishing your work.” Check out one of the sub-threads: The Reluctant Researcher Discussion Thread

Consider doing something small with local funding. It may be invigorating for you and your students to find a project that needs doing. Why not tie project-based learning to a real project with some real money involved? You’ll be using the skills, methods, and techniques you’re teaching, as well as your unique experience, to address a problem for a funding agency.

The Research and Sponsored Programs Office is available to assist you with proposal development and grant administration. Don’t hesitate to contact us at anytime. See our contact information on the last page of this newsletter.
The Research and Creative Endeavors Program is designed to provide faculty with seed money to pursue a research or scholarly project and eventually seek and attract external funding for their work.

As in the past, in making awards, the Committee will especially emphasize projects that have the potential to encourage new faculty, women, and minorities; to support research and creative endeavors across the disciplines; and to attract external resources.

The maximum award per project is $1,000. Generally, this program does not provide funding for conference travel, computer equipment and general office expenses.

Deadlines: October 1, 2014 and April 1, 2015.

The Research and Sponsored Programs Office will make up to 6 awards of $250 each to faculty and professional staff who develop and submit viable proposals to external funding agencies during 2014-2015. All grant proposals submitted through the Research and Sponsored Programs Office (excluding continuation and fellowship applications) will automatically be eligible.

Awards will be made based on the following considerations:

- Quality of proposal
- Match between proposal and sponsor (likelihood of success)
- Institutional support of proposal.

Up to 6 awards will be made in May 2015.

Deadline: April 30.

The Grant Development Program will provide awards of up to $1,500 to full-time faculty of professional staff to pursue the development of new proposals for submission to external funding agencies. All successful applicants will be required to submit a full proposal (with a budget of at least $50,000 per year) to an external sponsor within one year from the time of award. It is expected that those interested will have identified a potential sponsor and contacted that sponsor to discuss funding possibilities. The application form requires a description of the proposed project and a project time line that incorporates the applicant’s plans for meeting the grant submission deadline. Allowable budget items include travel, supplies, books, duplicating, telephones, etc.

Deadline: Open.
Carnegie is the biggest funder in the humanities—bigger than the National Endowment for the Humanities. It is a primary funder of the American Council of Learned Societies and of the Social Science Research Council. For more information see the article “At Mellon, Signs of Change: The giant grant maker, known for its opacity, is studying its strategy for saving the humanities” by Jennifer Howard in the 29 June 2014 Chronicle of Higher Education at http://chronicle.com/article/At-Mellon-Signs-of-Change/147363/.

Howard Hughes Medical Institute
The private foundation has become a big player in grants for improving STEM education at liberal arts colleges. It makes awards every four years to institutions by invitation depending on a relationship developed between the institution and the funder. New relationships are welcomed; in the 2008 cycle, 25% were first-time grantees. The most recent awards were made in 2013. It also distributes funds on different grant cycles through the Science Education Alliance, UTeach and several other programs.

Federal Grant Reform
At the end of 2013, the Federal Government implemented the first major overhaul of grants policy in 40 years. Henry Flood, an analyst at The Grantsmanship Center, believes this will fundamentally change the nature of grants. Until now, grants were flexible; they were essentially “gifts with few strings attached.” However, as of 2014, they are now considered “assistance agreements” whose terms and conditions bind you to deliver what you have promised as you also carry out a variety of added-in national policy requirements, continuous certifications and assurances, federal agency priorities, and Executive Branch priorities reflected in OMB Circular A-11 and the President’s Budget.”
