"Hollow Days"

This piece was one of the first I created at home. The mood I was portraying was the sorrow of the loss of my senior year but more importantly the lives that were to be lost during this time.

The mood I was created at home. This piece was one of the first I thought to create this piece.

This was one of my first somewhat abstract pieces. It is shown as up close perspective to a flower. I used stippling with thick paint in the middle and this carries your attention not only back out to the petals but to the middle but also carries your close perspective. It is shown as up first somewhat abstract pieces. It was one of my Emma "Blossom"

I used charcoal for this piece. I wanted to create a dark and mysterious tone that I think is something of a lake view from a camp of sorts. This piece had a dark lake view from a camp of sorts. This piece had a dark tone that I think is captivating.

I created this line drawing then decided to embroider it. I really like this piece, it's fun and different. I decided to create a contrast with the white thread on the black side and vice versa.

I've had my ukulele for years now and was wanting to change it up! I painted this simplistic geometric face on the back of the ukulele. This is the outcome of a 1AM painting. I had a lot of fun doing this one!
I created this little guy with Prisma Colored Pencils. He's definitely a favorite! He was super fun to create and it was my first time working first hand with colored pencils. I created this little guy with Prisma Colored Pencils. Ian

POP!
I had a photo of a close up of my friend, Rowan. I decided to take this photo and do a "pop of color" style piece. The skin is all graphite, but the sunglasses and pupils are done in paint (watercolor and acrylic). Mixed media.

"Rowan"
This piece uses the same Prismacolor pencils to do that hair and her earring. I used this idea of different close ups. For the concept as “Rowan,” I liked the Mixed Media 16" x 16" Jeselyn “Novaleigh”
This is a graphite drawing of my little brother. I had done a similar drawing in my personal sketchbook, but I wanted to do it on a much bigger scale. It's one of my favorite pieces I've done.
